It has come to our knowledge that a report has been industricually circulated by some dishonest person to the effect that the CLARET, CHABLIS, SAUTERNE, and other WINES imported and sold by us, with a label bearing the above mark and the name of A. VIGOUROUS underneath, are composed partly or wholely of colonial wines, and that the cases, bottles, the are imported empty!! and filled here. However ridiculous this may appear to mercantile men, and those possessed of the moderate amount of knowledge necessary to enable them to distinguish French from Australian wines, it may mislead others. We will therefore pay £50 to any person who will give us such information as aball lead to the conviction for slander of the originator of this report.

analyses of the eight different samples of tellings from Queendand, as contained in your desire of the 18th instant, has no doubt been resed by thousands, and most earnestly pendered over by those more immediately intersected in gold-reefing. Fow wore, perhaps, powpared to meet with such an actuarding proof as given by Mr. Smith, of the Mcfallurgical Laboratory, Royal School of Mines, that in Queendand, on an average, 75 per cent, of all the gold contrined in the one raised is lost with the tailings through imperfect manipulation, and only one-quarter extracted. So much for our progress with the usual splendid evulning plants with all the latest improvements as now manufactured, and the intelligence of their managers brought to hear upon this growing industry, even where there are no particular impediments met with, as with ore containing mundic.

As regards the proper treatmont of pyties, few seem as yet to have any class idea of what is really required, exhous the contained "sweet" (free from mipplus). Now this calcining process is in extensive operation in Viotoria, at Cluncs, at Grenfell, and elsewhere; but inasmuch as it does not remove all the supplus, does not tecompose, crydine, or burn off the pyriten completely, is no more fit for a complete and successful smalgumation with quelchiler than if not calcined at all—even less so, for the bisulphurets are merely changed into a lover kind of sulphuret, and as such, still more pernicious to quickailver.

If the question of how to avoid the loss of gold be of

if withheld; bets do not come under this heading).

2. That professional in one sport should be reckoned professional in all.

3. That profession of such 'manual labour as would give a man undue exercise and development of muscle, compared to those whose profession is sedentary, should make him professional in sport.

The question of "who is a gentleman" should never be raised. By what standard is it to be decided?

If by the positive legal standard, not one-third of the members of London clubs have the right to inscribe themselves "armigeri," sequires, or gentlemen. Under such technicality the most tenth-rate junior attorney takes precedence of a City millionaire.

Or is the question to be one of social acceptation? Then, what shall be the qualification? Pedigree? Then we must search parish registers ad swindswet.

2. d.? Then the son who degends on a father is "no gentleman." Education? Then competitive examination must precede qualification. The specialist of a club committee? Then who first shall qualify the committee as "gentlemen," and so as judges of what a gentleman should be? There is the hitch—who shall be the judges? "To be recognised as an authority on such a point, a critic must himself be universally accepted as a gentleman. He may pass muster in some athletic clubs; he may comider himself a "fair specimen of a gentleman amateur;" but it is no evidence that, because he looks down upon some one else and considers him "no gentleman," he in his own turn would not be voted a anob in a university circle or regimental meas, or that, if gasetted to the service by Mr. Cardwell, he would not cause a repetition of the burleaque of "Tribe v. Caste."

Caste is a question that should never be brought into the arena of sport; competition on fair terms should be the sole desideratum. When sport is over, let each competitor go home to his own circle, and there assert his exclusiveness; but by field or flood all are equal who compete on equal terms.

The abstract question of the finding of the jury I do not mean h in our wake. If we succeed in inducing the Sikhs likewise to make common cause with us, all the better; if not, the Afghans alone are senough for our purpose. The negotiations of an Afghan alliance cannot early enough be taken in hand. All is gained if that can be gained; for not to conquer India, but only to destroy or shake the English rule, must be our object in invading the country. A moderate force, just strong enough to form the nucleus of a general insurrection, would be sufficient to attain our end. In proportion as the enslaved nationalities gather round our standard, our troops might be reduced and the natives left to themselves. The shove is dated June, 1854; two other memoranda on the same aubject, respectively dated August, 1854, and April, 1855, likewise said to have been presented to the Emperor Nicholas, and now published by the Allgemeins Zedung, it is not necessary to translate, as their suthors are not given. Supposing these documents to be suthemic, they prove the Emperor, who ignored them, to have been a more discreet man than the Generals who drew them up. Indeed, to treat the march through Afghanistan and the defiles, defended by English troops, with the amusing brevity observable in the above plee de company, can be accounted for only by the disturbing influence the heat of a hostile period exercised upon the imagination of the writer. Since then, moreover, the whole aspect of things has been changed. One portion of Turkestan has been reduced, the rest will follow suit; and, what is equally important, the Bolor and Kun Lun Mountains, thus rendered accessible to the northern conquerors, have been proved, not a continuous chain of insurmounts ble hills, as they were formerly believed to be, but a group of separate ridges, broken through by practicable valleys and passes.

of digestion—and especially, high delisions flavent. One treat will establish it as a favourine beverange for breaking, innehendand as a conting retrackment after a late evening. H.R.—Cantien, "Harsvelle" its registered trade mark.

The Lydney Morning Berald. THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1873.

THE maxim of Dr. FRANKLIN, that teacher o economy, who had a profound conviction of the power of simple interest to make or ruin a man, left us this couplet :-"Vessels large may venture more, But little boats should keep near shore." The history of the manufacture and dispersion The history of the manufacture and dispersion of shares is illustrated by bitter experience. When the great discovery turned the heads of the population, and when they were drawn by fiaming schemes into wild speculations, there was nothing new in the excitement. The periodical frenzy of mankind is seen everywhere in the records of folly and delusion. The greater part are only safe as they follow the beaten track, and give a Roland for an Oliver; but when once imagination is set loose it is wonderful how rapidly the contagion of sympathy reduces shrewd men to drivellers. One would think that the experience we have had of the effect of speculation might at leas had of the effect of speculation might at least check its wild course. But even the cautious and prudent often become a snare to mere copyists, who, fancying they can interpret the minds of those about them, follow their example, and by this means give them the chance they wanted to escape. The blind confidence reposed in the judgment of others in ignorance of the greater part of the subject has been the ruin of many. For example, one may believed to be all, but unperging have with has been the ruin of many. For example, one man believed to be all but unnerring buys with one hand and sells with another. His only reason for buying is that he may be able to sell, or what is called rig the market; for by combining with one or two others in the sam secret, he is able to create a fictitious value He exclaims, as he looks on his neigh-bour, a gentleman of so much expe-rience and honour would neither deceive nor be deceived. Reposing upon one-half of the character in which he places confidence, he finds at last that the men are not very numerous who will disclose what it is their interest to conceal. It is dangerous to make use of another man's judgment, and yet this use of another man's judgment, and yet this was the course of nine in ten who speculated in gold shares. But there were others whose example was followed by those who were ignorant on what facts it was Tounded. A man who bought shares in a mine valued at £80,000, and gave for them £1 each, ought to have been thoroughly acquainted with their value. If he blindly followed the outsiders, he was taking a dangerous course. But supposing those who purchased shares at this rate made a prudent speculation—suppose they received an equivalent for what they paid, was there any reason for a safe conclusion that the same amount would be repeated; or, if a return sufficient to pay a handsome dividend on the £1, did it follow that this justified the expectation of a dividend on £3 or £4, or £7 or £8? The man who bought in at these high prices acted the part of a simpleton, and he has no right to complain of being misled by the original promoters or shareholders. They had left room, as it proved, for a handsome indemnity, although the speculation was dangerous; but they gave no warrant to expect, in addition to this, the vast profit which would enable others to come out unecathed. Gold mines which deserved good repute as fairly returning a handsome interest will be thought of with intense dissatisfaction repute as fairly returning a handsome interest will be thought of with intense dissatisfaction by those who have no one to blame but them-selves. Many of these mines, however, were loaded with preliminary expenses and prior claims, which had no other basis than a fanciful value. A mine worth £6000 was put sufficiently obscure to prevent future danger.

Many of these documents answered a moment's purpose, and they are gone, after drawing out of the pockets of the thoughtless a sufficient sum to be inconvenient to losers, a sufficient sum to be inconvenient to losers, but not enough probably to ruin them. In fact, although no man ought to be victimised, there are some who deserve no compassion. What did they expect to do when they applied for hundreds of shares in almost every company accessible, certainly not with the notion of mining, except in the pockets of dupes? If they had expected to hold shares they would have considered what they were they would have considered what they were likely to represent. But it was not necessary that they should do so, so long as there were greater fools than themselves prepared to purchase their worthless paper. There are many sound undertakings that will be profitable to all who conduct them with prudence and moderation; and it is a pity that they should ever be involved in the repreach of those base schemes which could not have lived an hour if intelligently investigated. The numerous pro-moters who took a large sum for their names have damaged their reputation, and, in pro-portion to their knowledge of what they were doing, their sense of self-respect. Honest exchange improves the relations of mankind, exchange improves the relations of mankind, and, notwith-standing what has been said by silly people about merchandise and merchants, they have more than any other class of secularists advanced the welfare of their fellow-men; but gamblers are the bane of commerce, and they are a chief cause of those periodical pages and collapses. cause of those periodical panics and collapses which leave behind them the traces everywhere which leave beauth them the traces everywhere of bankruptcy and misery.

We have no right to judge our neighbours, even in misfortune produced by rashness, and certainly we shall not boast of the warnings which now require no one to enforce them. The heart of many an honest tradesman and thrifty matron now suffers a severer pang than without sorrow. We hope that many who have generally conducted their affairs with prudence have escaped with a little "grazing," for by greater reserve they may soon cover losses that have not been madly curred. There is a wretched proverb which leads to gross self-deception, and plunges those who are on the margin of a flood head over heels. It is the hair of the dog that bit you. Kill or cure,; win the blade or throw away the haft. Such are the maxims of men who ruin themselves and all around them. No man is justified in venturing in pursuit of uncertain gain, or anything whatever, which, if he should fail, will reb his creditors and make his family miserable. We have a profound conviction that the mineral wealth of this country will enrich its inhabitants, and we are in sympathy with the search for it where it is conducted with reason. But if it is now matter of lamenting that hopes have been disappointed, it is only fair to ask whether they were ever justified, whether the blame is not were ever justined, whether the blame is not entirely due to those who, with examples in every quarter of the world warning them against trusting in uncertain riches, have acted as though every stone was gold, and every share were a bill of exchange payable at sight, and who believed that their only danger was to sell out too soon, and to lose a part of the premium.

THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT AND THE

A TELEGRAPHIC despatch from the Secretary of State has been received by his Excellency the Governor, intimating that as the offer of her Majesty's Government for the colonies to agree in combination on the terms of the new Suez mail contract had not been accepted, further arrangements would be made with the P. and O. Company for the conveyance of the mails. The company had offered to continue the present service temporarily for two years at present rates, or for three years with reduction of £12,000 a year, the steamers in either case to call at Glenelg. The concurrence of this colony in extension of the contract is asked, with an intimation of its preference for the longer or shorter term.

At a meeting of the Cabinet, yesterday, it was decided to request his Excellency to reply that the Government concur in the proposed extension

THE TRANS-PACIFIC MAIL SERVICE.—The Government, some time ago, received authority from the Legislative Assembly to invite tenders for a mail service across the Pacific. To complete the route between Sydney and London it obtained from the Home Government permission to make treaties with the United States, subject to Imperial approval. And with a view to subsidies for the proposed service provision was made last session to send a special agent to visit London and Washington. We understand that the Hon. Saul Samuel, M.L.C. (Vice-President of the Executive Council) is to be appointed Special Commissioner to negotiate respecting this proposed mail service via California, and that he will shortly proceed on his important misseen.

Brimber Park.—This piece of ground occupying the site of the old Police Paddock, set spart a few year ago as a reserve for public recreation, and more recently entitled "Belmore Park," is in its present condition wholly undeserving of that cuphonious designation. It does not even deserve to be called a "park." The best things about the so called "Park" are the massive stone gates, and dwarf stone wall and iron rails. With those all measures for decoration seem to have ceased. For several years until within the last few months an open ditch ran from Albion-street through the whole extent of the reserve to Pitt-street south. An apology for a wooden bridge crosses this ditch in which there was constantly a stream—a running stream we ware going to say, but the water ran only after very heavy rains. Except on these occasions the ditch was covered at the bottom, throughout its entire extent of some hundred yards, with a dirty looking composition, half water, half mud, which entitled at all times a malaria-breeding stened. It was bod all the year round, but the nuisance was at its height in aummer. Lately the ditch has been filled up with garbage, and the bridge taken away; so that as there is no channel and no drain by which the water can be carried off, the drainage and liquid refuse water spreads over the ground, and in wet weather it is not possible to cross from the Haymarket to Pitt-street South without having to wade this alongh of despond. This is the condition of a public ground, which, instead of being made subservient to the health and recreation of the people of the neighbourhood, is likely to spread disease, and is at most times impeasable by foot-passengers.

DRATH IN THE BUSE AT FIVE DOCK.—On Monday last, the City Coroner commenced, at the Five Dock Inn, Five Dock, an inquest respecting the cause of death of a man, name unknown, who had been found in Ramsey's bush, on the Parrameta Road, on Saturday last. Several witnesses were examined, and the inquest was adjourned till the following day, when Dr. Haylock, who had made a post-morten examination of the body, was examined. He believed congestion of the langs to have been the immediate cause of death, and that this disease had probably been caused by exposure to the cold and moisture. Susannah Eveston, a girl residing at Five Dock with her parents, deposed to finding the body on Saturday Jorenson, near the Iron Cove Creek. Constable Toomey deposed to examining the spot about which things were scattered as if the deceased had been camping near the creek during the night; they included a Roman Catholic prayer book. On the body were brown tweet frouters, black vest with brown facings, two rid crimican shirts, leather belt round the waist, blucher books apparently now; un coat or nextici; in his hands were an alpace coat which contained a wet menorandum book in which was a asseno. dated 24th April, 1873, written in pencil, as follows:—"I Judge Pat. G. Lyons last dying words—I wan a case of law and no jissize given, as I am going to die I face the people my last forwell—my hast confession in accordance to the Catholic faith." Witness Toomey said that all the writings on papers and in the memorandum book were in the same handwriting, and all signed. "Pat. Lyons." It appeared from entires that the Pat. Lyons." It appeared from entires that the Pat. Lyons referred to was a native of Donegal, and had been in New Zealand and Guecansland. Dr. Haylock doserribed deceased as follows: The body was that of a man about 35 years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches in height, with light complexion, black ey

FOURD DROWNED.—Yesterday afternoon, the City Coroner held, at the Observer Tavern, George-street North, an inquest respecting the cause of death of Jereniah Sullivan, found in Woolloomooloo Bay, on the previous day. Patrick Sullivan deposed that he resided at Riley-the street, Surry Hills, and was a labourer; deceased, Jeromish Sullivan, was his brother; in was a shout 10 years of age, a can married, and had left a widow and seven children; he had the cen 16 years in the colony; he believed he last saw him alive on Good Friday; he could not swin; he was a very resident of the last 12 or 13 years he had the colony of the last 12 or 13 years he had the colony of the last 12 or 13 years he had deemsed lived on Surry Hills; on Saturday witness heard, his brother was missing and he was searching for him, when he found traces of him at a public-house at the country of crown and Campbell streets, where he had been not last Friday night; that was the last place he could trace a hour of the house, as the place; she and him at her place of the husband, who kept the Surry Hills; he was under the influence of drink and appeared silly; he came in before 11 o'clock and had two small glasses of ale; she did not see him leave her house; ahe saw him outside with a small than the could not go out without help; he these stagered up Campbell-street in the unbloth of the same was a bound 12 o'clock on last Friday night; he was under the influence of drink and appeared silly; he came in before 11 o'clock and had two small glasses of ale; she did not see him leave her house; as he was so drunk that he could not go out without help; he the stagered up Campbell-street in the public house; he had no not than the was considered that he was considered that he was considered that he was on should be a street, and the surface; the body was about

The Trans-Pacific Mail Service.—The Government, some time ago, received authority from the Legislative Assembly to invite tenders for a mail service across the Pacific. And I may add to this that Australian mosquitoes, of which I had heard much, and which I feared greatly, were never quite so venomous to me as mesquitoes have been in other countries, nor are they in force for so large a proportion of the year. The mosquito of Australia is a poor, impotent, and contemptible creature as compared, for instance, with the mosquito of the United States. If a man wants to find his master—a master whom he cannot evade or subdue, a tyrant under whose lash he will have to quall with a sense of uncessing inferiority and transling subjection, let him remain in Washington through the month of July. Then the horn of the animal will be to him as the trumpets of ten thousand coming foes, against whom no struggles, no defence, can avail aught. Night and day he will be as Job was, till all his manhood will depart from him. And afterwards, if he survive, he will think of himself as of one who has gone through worse than an Egyptian plague. He will be justified in no such feeling in reference to the Australian mosquito,—whom I declare to be comparatively a poor creature earlied to but little attention. So much, as a traveller recording his experience, I feel bound to say, because the animal has succeeded in acquiring some reputation. To write a book about Australia and make no altusion to the mosquito would be improper. And I may as well say here as cleavier that I do not think much of the Australian snakes. The black snake, with its female the brown snake, and the death—are no doubt venomous, to the death, but they are not obtrusive. They stake say when they find themselves mashe to except, and are not misserous, as I had been taught to expect. The yellow snake—so called from its yellow belty—is equally poissonous, but equally scarce and pacific. I assisted in killing one time fellow about ton feet long; but he was exarpet snake, "Concern I in Tell Ekinstein Buildeling."

CONCERT IN THE EKRISHTION BUILDING.—
The large number of poople, who, despits wind and cold, made their way to the Exhibition building last evening, were simply revershed. Mr. Lascelles not only successful in removing the embarge from the organ, but devoted himself to the task of eliciting from that superb instrument splendid music, which was duly appreciated, the more on perhaps, owing to its being imprompts. Mr. Lascelles has, however, indee arringuments to secure possession of the organ, and has promised the committee to introduce, for the remainder of the work, some of his best subcidence, which will materially add to the estruction of the organ, which will materially add to the estruction of the organize he has hitherete by shy managed.

The Honerary Treasurer, the Rev. J. B. Waterhouse, read the balance-sheet, showing the receipts and disbursements. The Rev. G. H. HOLMES moved the first resolution, which was to the following effect:—"That the report now read be adopted and printed, and that this meeting presents its gratitude to the Great Head of the Church for the success with which He has crowned the efforts of the Methodist Church in this colony throughout the year." The rev. gentleman spoke in behalf of the society as one whose objects were right, Scriptural, and Divine. It was a society which had not, as yet, lived long, but it had done a great and glorious work-one which would have been lef undone but for its beneficial agency. The circuits it had assisted to form, and the souls it had helped to save, had strongly commended it to the entire Methodist body, and he trusted its claims would never be disregarded. A small grant in aid, or a timely loan in aid of the erection of a chapel, or small place of worship in the beach, were things which had a much greater weight for good than many light be inclined to suppose. Next we rode on the top of an omnibus to the Jardin des Plantes. Found we had come on a wrong day for the Galleries of Natural History, but after applying to several officials we were permitted to walk round the collection of rocks and minerals. I noticed there a piece of native alum from N. 8. Wales, contributed by Mr. Alex. Riley to the Paris Exhibition of 1855. The gardens do not seem to have suffered much from the war. The fine cedar of Lebanon planted by Jussieu in 1735 still flourishes; and if any of the wild animals were eaten during the siege they must have been replaced.

From the gardens we recrossed the river to the Place de la Bastille, passing on our way the blackened ruins of the Arsenal and the Grenier d'Abendance. The column in the Place showed marks of rifle bullets. We proceeded to Père la Chaise, passing the prison of La Roquette, where the Archbishop and other notabilities were shot by the Communists. The inscription recently put over the gateway—"Liberty, Equality, Fraternity"— seemed such a hideous mockery. Returning to the Place de la Bastille we got on the top of an omnibus, which took us right round the boulewards to the Madeleine. Many houses on this line showed injuries by shot; and the Port St. Denis was thickly peppered. We looked again into the church of the Madeleine and found that it rather suffers by comparison with the churches of Italy; but the exterior is undoubtedly very grand. Then we walked along the Boulevard Malesherbes to the beautiful new church of St. Augustine. Its front was pitted with rife bullets, and the windows, roof, and dome were pierced with many holes. Interior light and siry, and adorsed with much gilding. Continued our walk to the pretty little Parc de Monceaux, bright with green grass and bursting leaves. HENRY T. FOX.

HOW A GOLD-FIELD WAS DISCOVERED.—The Pasteral Times says:—How fortune turns upon a man and how she faces about may be seen in the history of the new gold-field just discovered on the Upper Lachlan. A party of fencers were working on Holt and Mr. Gellar's run, Cudgelligo. It appears that the contractor for the fencing had under him a son-in-law, whose wife was with the party. The father-in-law, alleging that the son-in-law was uscless as a fencer, discharged him; so away went the man and his wife, and they wandered in a most destitute condition. Camped at a place called the Bald Hills, in Codgelligo, near a beautiful lake about fourteen miles by four, the poor woman, bred on the Tunut gold-fields, picked up a piece of quarts in which gold was visible. They searched, and soon found the reef, in opening which they discovered plenty of quarts of most promising richmes. We are told on good authority that these reefs crop out over a large extent of country hereabouts, and that there are likely to be alluvial diggings. The poor wanderer who found the reef immediately searred it by law, and was offered £1000 for his share, which he declined, although a short time previously he had not a blanket to put over his wife. A company was soon formed of men in the neighbourhood, and operations were commenced on a small scale. The discovery was soon known, and lots of people visited the spet to obtain specimens, which were at first given freely, and of course the affair now became very generally noised abroad. The consequence is a rush from all quarters to one of the most charming spots on the Upper Lachlan, where the scenery is besutiful—grass, water, and beef abundant; but where is the flour to come from "Curgelligo" is 165 miles from Hay (which is, we hear, short of flour), and 90 miles from Forkes, which has some considerable quantities of breadstuffs; but it is expected that it is nonth there will be 3000 p

A meeting of the representatives of the various insurance companies doing business in this city took place yesterday. It was unanimously resolved to support the movement now being made to increase the rates on risks connected with the trade between England and the colonies.

De Beer's Melbourne Monthly Shipping and Freight Report of the 22nd instant says:—

A reference to my last circular of 37th utimo will show that the wool-shipping eason had then virtually closed, the exports of this article since made being almost entirely composed of course's parcels, which, however, amonat to a fair aggregate and as other articles of produce have been offering in Iair quantity, all the ships that have been dispetended have left with full courses, and the greater part of their passenger accommodation represented by the Thomas Stephens, 1507; to the left with full courses, and the greater part of their passenger account of the London; the best for same port being cocupied by the Diswur, 13c5; Norna, 1000; and Calentia, 2005; the two former scribely leading and well filled up, while the latter, having only recently serived, has not yet made a commencement, but it is understood that a large portion of her freight space is aiready sengaed. Several of our regular tradebs the Messrs, Green and Messer. Register Of the ZERG Instant:—

When the last mail left wheat was easy at 5a, but it almost immediately after, owing to the reduction in the freight, and to the fact that famers had withdrawn if rom the market in order to carry on their ploughing farming operations. These causes have prevailed through the property of the property stiffs much during which prices have been gradually stiffs.

THERE are indications that the Share market has seen its worst phase for a time at least. has seen its worst phase for a time at least. Buyers were more numerous to-day, and tewards the close of the market there was considerable inquiry for Krohmann's, owing to a rumour that Carroll Beard's vein, before reported as struck in Krohmans, was proving rich. Sales on Change were made at 52s. 6d. Beyers and Holtsermans dull; 25s. to 27s. 6d. was paid, sellers at 27s. Fischer Beards firmer, rales at 18s. 3d. Jaffres and Gillards chunged hands at 10s. 3d. to 19s. 6d., and Band and Albiona at 25s. 6d. to 36s. At the meeting of the Drummond Copper Company, held at the Chamber of Commerce, this afternoon, 78 shareholders, owning three this afternoon, 78 shareholders, owning three-fourths of the entire number of shares, were represented. According to the deed of settle-ment eighty-four shareholders were necessary to the transaction of business; the meeting was consequently adjourned for a week. During the interval it is expected that more than a sufficient number of proxies will be sent in.

"We have got a lode of ore in Burton's shaft that will go seventy per cent."

Union Jack G. M. Co.—The manager reports:—"You will see that the progress this month is a slight improvement on the last; but through there being so much rock to remove and timber to put in, we have not done so well as we will next month (as now the worst is ever). The rock has changed to a nice blue slate, and there is a little gold on the casing,—both of which are good signs. I intend to get down 100 feet (i.e., 8 feet below present level) before breaking into the reef, and then I feel confident there will be gold showing. I am very pleased with the change in the rock and the general appearance of the mine, and feel very hopeful of good results. As soon as I break into the reef, I will let you know the result. You will see that half the month I have had only four men."

The Belle of Wattle Flat G. M. Co.—The mining manager reports having sunk four feet for the week ending April 26; total depth, 134 feet. The rock still remains about the same, with indications of a reef near at hand.

The Great Exhibition G. M. Co.—The mining manager reports having sunk three feet for the week ending 28th April; total depth, 381 feet 6 inches. A change has taken place; the rock has become very hard and close, and similar to what the Scandinavian Co. passed through before cutting the reef, The vein has broken up, and dippod out of the seats.

nas every reason to believe that the large vein will improve shortly.

Quartz Ridge G. M. Co.—At the half-yearly general meeting of sharsholders, held this day, the balance sheet and report were adopted. Mr. F. Senior was re-elected a director, and Messrs. A. W. Satton and W. Jack were appointed auditors for the ensuing year.

Ruby Creek T. M. Co.—The half-yearly general meeting of sharsholders was held this day, at the effice of the company. The report and balance sheet were edopted, after which the meeting was adjourned for a feringht.

Bydney Tia Co.—The mining manager reports having raised and forwarded to Sydney 13 tons ore since his arrival on the mine; total expenses during that period being £323, being at a cost of about £25 per ton.

Wheal Johnson Tin Co.—Telegram from the mine reports.—"74 tons got last week; have forwarded 85 tons."

tons."

Stannifer Tin Co.—Telegram from the mine reports the yield for last week to be 52 cwt.

Reliance G. M. Co.—The mining manager, writing on April 28, reports that the shaft is down 60 feet. He is now driving west, and is confident that he is close to a good reef, as the country is of a good-looking slate coming into the drive. He expects a material change at any minute, as there are changes at almost every foot.

Wholerals invanticide in London.—Some sensation was created in Walworth Road and its neighbourhood, on the 18th February, in consequence of the discovery on the previous evening of a number of dead bodies of newly-born children in a disused deadhouse attached to the former burying-ground of St. Peter's Church, Walworth Road, and opinions were very freely expressed that a wholesale infanticide had been going on. Constable John Creasey, 6! P, lives in Trafalgar-street. Walworth Road, and the yard attached to his house abuts on St. Peter's churchyard wall. In this yard he kept a quantity of fowl, and on Monday evening one of them was missing. He afterwards ascertained that a fowl answering the description of one lost had been offered to a dealer in Camden-street by a boy who was employed about the churchyard, and the policeman upon this returned to his house and made his way over the churchyard wall, thiuking to find the missing fowl there; but very different objects met his view. He opened the door of the old dead-house, and there, partly covered over with timber and stones, he found six small coffins, each containing the body of a child, and an open box containing two others, all in a high state of decomposition; so much so that the sex of only three of them could be determined. The whole of them, with one exception, appeared to be newly-born infants, but one was about twalve months old.

NOMBY, GARRAWILLA, and GORIAGILLA contain an estimated area of one hundred and seventy thousand (170,000) scres, and were formed 40 years ago by the late G. H. Cox. Eq., and were sold with the sheep thereon in 1853, to the present proprietors, by the suscessors of that gentleman.

These stations are bounded by Bomers, Bande, and Malville Plains Stations, and are in every respect, equal in fattening qualities.

The country consisting of myall plains, box ridges, and appletree flats, is well watered in all seasons by springs, wells, and dams, as well as having the Nomby, Garrawilla, Goriagilla, and minor creeks running through them.

The stations are fonced in by post and rail, wire, and log fencing of a substantial character, and subdivided into seventeen (17) paddocks.

Yamingabah, Dandry, and Denaboli, consist of ninetysix thousand (96,000) acres, and adjoin Garrawilla, and are worked in conjunction with Garrawilla, Nomby, and Goriagilla as auxiliary stations, and are well watered by springs and never falling creeks.

The ocuntry consists of box ridges and appletree flats.

The various improvements have cost the present proprictors over £20,600.

At tiarrawilla, advantage has been taken of a neverfailing spring of soft water to erect a large washing plant at which are all the newest appliances for spouting and hot water washing—the water being raised by means of a centrifugal pump and 12 h. p. steam engine, the arrangements for socuring any quantity of weol are complete, the present proprietors having been accustomed for some years past, to soour all the greasy wool from their breeding comprising an estimated area of 196,000 acres.

The two former stations were formed by the late Mr.
E. Cox, about 40 years ago, and were sold by the representatives of that gentleman to the present proprisions.
GOORIANAWAH is considered one of the best stations in the Bligh district, and consists of open myall and salt bush plains and box ridges.
A large sum has been expended on this station to render the supply of water permanent, ten dams having been made, all of which were filled by the late rains.
There are also eight wells, from some of which, during the drought of 1983 the sheep on the station were watered.

The preprietors wish to call attention to the fact that these abeep were brod by Messrs. G. H. and R. K. Coz, and that the only rams ever used on the stations have been those of Mr. Nicholas Bayly, Mr. James Riley of Lowes, and the Messrs. Co.x.

The sheep are therefore, in point of fact, PURE BAXON MERINO, and great care in culling having each year been exercised, the auctioneers are enabled to amerit that all the flocks are of a first-class quality.

The wool commands a high price in the London market, the price of last year's O over RR in triangle clip, consisting of 1000 bales, having ranged from 2 to 2 11d per lb.

The stores, drays, implements, horses, working bullooks, and other effects on the several stations to be taken at a valuation.

The sheep were shorn in September last, and will be carrying nearly 9 months, wool at time of delivery.
